THIRD ANNUAL REPORT

ON

Home Missions

OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Board of Home Missions present their Annual Report to the General Assembly, with profound gratitude to God for his favor during the year past, and for the part they have had in a work which is so manifestly owned and blest of him; for harmony in the counsels of the Board, and the entire agreement in all the measures adopted to promote the prosperity of the work. We cannot but hope that its acts will also meet the approval of all those most deeply interested therein, namely: the Presbyteries, the Missionaries, and the General Assembly itself. With so wide a field passing under the inspection of the Board, having to do with so large a number of persons, many of whom are entire strangers to us, doing business almost wholly by correspondence, it would not be surprising if there should be misapprehensions at times which would lead to mistakes and to heart-burnings. The danger of such things was the greater, from the recent union of two bodies that had been strangers to each other for many years, and with somewhat different modes of thought and action; but so far as the Home Missionary work is concerned, and we have no reason to suppose it is not so in every branch of church work, the union seems most happy and complete. Separate churches, representing the two bodies in the same place, have shown such a tendency to unite and make one strong church, that many think the movement has in some cases gone too far; consolidating in one church what would have been more successful in two separate organizations. Feeble churches in the same neighborhood, that could not unite in the support of a single pastor on account of the division, are now entering into fraternal relations, employing the same pastor and assuming his entire support, or greatly reducing the amount of missionary aid demanded.

Certain rules and regulations to which the attention of the churches and Presbyteries had been called, at first were thought by some to be useless and arbitrary, but after examination they were seen to be necessary and salutary. The correspondence with the missionaries has been more pleasant and satisfactory than usual, showing that with a growing acquaintance with each other there has also grown up a better understanding of each other.

THE GREAT NEED OF MORE MISSIONARIES.

The whole number of missionaries is somewhat less than last year.

If the churches to which they minister had become self sustaining, we should have rejoiced, for it is our constant endeavor to induce them to assume self-support at the earliest possible moment. We fear we have on our list not a few churches that might be independent of missionary aid, who cling to us, unwilling to do what they ought for the support of their pastors; still it is our purpose, as far as possible, to throw the burden on them, and encourage and stimulate them to leave us and thenceforth support the institutions of religion without foreign aid. The farewell letters from such churches we are always looking for, and we receive them with special gratification and thanksgiving. But such was not the cause for the great reduction in the number of Missionaries, nor was it because we had no fields to supply; but we could not find men for the work.

There are many changes every year. Some Missionaries die, some become enfeebled by age or otherwise, and are compelled to leave the work of the ministry, and many others become pastors of self-sustaining churches. Our number, therefore, would be greatly reduced any year if we could not succeed in finding men to fill the places made vacant in the way just spoken of.

Undoubtedly some of our number have been transferred to the Sustentation Committee, but as the names of persons aided by that Committee—except the appointments made in July, August and September, 1872—have never been given to the public in the Record or otherwise, we have no means of knowing how great is the number of those that have been transferred from our lists to theirs. But that, probably, does little to account for the falling off in our numbers.

We made unusual efforts to obtain men for the service of the Board at the beginning of the year, but met with very poor success. The young men about to graduate from our Theological Seminaries listened respectfully but responded feebly to our appeals. It is a great satisfaction however to know that those who accepted our proposals were young men of much promise, who have thus far done an excellent work for the Master. But our best exertions in obtaining men were well expressed by one at the West, who had done much to supply the destitute churches with pastors. He says “it has been the most difficult year in my nine years’ service in this State, to supply vacancies, and that on account of the scarcity of men.”

Our church is a missionary church. From the first it has been actuated by a desire to carry the Gospel to “the regions beyond.” Among the most important acts of the first General Assemblies, was the appointment of Missionaries to the destitute and sparsely settled neighborhoods, when almost the entire population was confined to the Atlantic seaboard. Still later, large numbers of the churches in Western New York and Western Pennsylvania were organized and fostered by the labors of Home Missionaries. Beyond these states in the Great West, at such points as Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis, now great and important centres of population and wealth, the first churches were reared by Home Missionary aid, and scarcely any churches at any other points in those great and prosperous states have been formed and brought up to self support without similar assistance. There are a few exceptions, but it is safe to say that more than nine-tenths of all the Presbyterian churches organized west of New York and Pennsylvania have been Home Missionary churches. Our great and remarkable growth is the result of Home Missions. And from the first, some of the ablest and best men have been willing to avail themselves of such aid as the Board offers, while toiling on the frontier to lay foundations for the church of Christ. If the missionary spirit dies out in our church; if our young men are led to think it discreditable to be missionaries; to think that the position is not one of honor in the church; that none enter into the work except such as have not the ability or the requisite qualifications to fill some place older, larger or more conspicuous; then our rapid growth and great prosperity are at an end.

In earlier periods of our history, it was the one work, grand and unique and Christ-like. It kindled the enthusiasm of the fathers to go throughout the broad land, to preach the gospel to all the poor and destitute; and the clear apprehension of it, as single and indivisible, inspired a corresponding determination on the part of the churches that they should not starve or suffer; and though their zeal and ability have not been equal to the task imposed on them; so well have the churches kept their pledge and provided for the Missionaries, that, aside from temporary delays, and exigencies that happen to all men, neither the living nor the dead have had cause to complain that they have not had a fair support, and a large share of satisfaction in the work of extending the kingdom of Christ, and planting churches, through the influence of which many have been saved.

There was a grandeur and a simplicity about it that impressed and moved them. There was one thing to be done, and that was an apostolic work, the work of preaching the gospel, a work of faith and love, which fired their zeal and led them onward in spite of cold or prudential considerations; and they entered upon the work without misgivings, and the Lord and his people saw them safely through. Its magnitude was so imposing, and it was so free from complications, so clearly defined and so easily apprehended, that it could not fail to arrest the attention, fasten itself in the memory, and kindle the heart with enthusiasm. The people gave their sympathies, their prayers and their money to it, and Home Missions gained steadily on their affections and their contributions.

The young men in the ministry and our theological students, apprehended it with equal clearness and embraced it with equal zeal, whenever they consented to give themselves to labor in feeble churches East or West.

THE GREATNESS OF THE FIELD.

But there has been no falling off in the demand for missionaries, and the work has lost none of its importance or magnitude on these accounts. It rather becomes the greater this year by all it has fallen off the past year. The reasons that we have urged during many years past for the speedy evangelization of the country, have lost none of their force.

If we were to speak in detail of the opening fields, it would be only to repeat and emphasize what we have said in former reports.

The Pacific coast under the combined influence of completed and prospective rail-roads across the continent, and the late prosperous years, has received a new impulse. Our missionary work there has never been so prosperous as now. All the Presbyterian churches on that coast except two, have been aided in their infancy by Home Missionary funds, and some of them are beginning now to pay back most generously into our treasury; a gentleman in one of the congregations having just offered $2000 a year for the support of Missionaries in Oregon. But the growth of population west of the Rocky mountains is such at the present time, that we have a demand for 31 more Missionaries at once.

The Rocky Mountain division, into which we have sent so many men the last three years, calls for four more men for Montana, two more for Utah, two for Wyoming, and five for Colorado, making 13 in all. Nebraska, into which we have poured an unusual force the last year, calls now for six men. In Kansas we have had great success the last few years, and that success has given us many fine opportunities which we could not avail ourselves of during the last year, on account of our lack of men. Nothing but that hinders an immediate and grand advance. For more than a year the cry has been for 25 men for Kansas, and as often as they have obtained a new man, some new station has been developed; so that the demand has not diminished, but rather increased during the year; for 29 more men are needed in Kansas this spring. Missouri is a much older state; but its capacities and resources are very great, and when we collate the places to which we are urged to send men at once, we find the aggregate to be 29 there also.

There is a similar demand from the other Western States. Minnesota calls for 11. In Iowa the lack of men is very great. Forty-six vacancies have been reported to us, but several of these are self-sustaining churches and need no help from the Board.

If we come to older and more Eastern States, we find them still filling up, undergoing development, and organizing new centres of population, and calling for Missionaries and missionary aid. Says one who is more familiar with the wants of Southern Illinois than any other: "We now need 20 ministers for fields now vacant, for about half the number we have negotiations now on foot; but there are quite a number of new points which we might and ought to occupy and shall do so just as soon as possible. Southern Illinois, especially that part of it embraced in the bounds of Cairo Presbytery, is only beginning to develop. Its natural resources are immense. It will ultimately match the Central and Northern parts of the State." So, one with similar information in Indiana, says: "If we had 20 men for destitute missionary fields, and then 20 more of just the right stamp, we could organize 20 churches more along our railroads and in the country settlements, the next three months."

From the North, Wisconsin calls for ten men. From the South, a Missionary in West Virginia says, "this field of West Virginia Presbytery, embracing 26 counties, is exceedingly destitute of churches and laborers. We have but 29 churches, and most of them are very weak and feeble." In no county have we more than three churches; in four, but one each; and in ten, none. From Kentucky a cry comes to us, saying: "We very much need more men at once. A wide and most inviting field is opening in this State."

Thus it becomes apparent that the area for settlement, and the extension of our population into sections previously unoccupied, and hitherto practically inaccessible, have been unsurpassed. Dacotah

Territory, where we have had but two or three churches, except those among the Indians, has been penetrated by the Northern Pacific, and practically brought near by other railways in Western Minnesota, Northern Iowa and Nebraska. In Nebraska, the railroad company alone, sold of the Government grant 172,000 acres of land the last year, and that they sold it mostly to actual settlers, is shown by the fact that the average quantity of land secured by each purchaser was only 123 acres. Another road has extended South-westward to the valley of the Arkansas, and thence towards its head-waters, to be united with another road running south from Denver to New Mexico. There is also a line now complete from Kansas southward through the Indian Territory and Texas to the Gulf of Mexico. And yet other lines are crossing and penetrating that State and all the Western States and Territories. Northward and Southward, on each side of the Rocky Mountains, noiselessly yet steadily, these thoroughfares are finding out every fertile valley, to fill it with people, and to cover the wide prairies with settlements and homes; and herds of cattle and flocks of sheep and waving fields of grain are found, where but a short time since were wild wastes, occupied by buffaloes, elk and deer, hunted in the chase by savages as untamed as they.

One Missionary writes, what is substantially true of all the Western States, "the State is developing very rapidly as new railroads are penetrating every part of it and new points spring into being to be occupied." The near approach of these railways to the great mining centres of the Rocky Mountains and near Western States, has given a new impetus to the tide of population flowing into that part of our country. The mining interests are in a much more healthful condition than ever before. The wild excitements and speculations of the past, have measurably subsided; and mining has assumed the form of legitimate and ordinary business, subject to the ordinary laws of trade; consequently it has become a safer and more healthful calling, and the portions of the country that had been most dependent on it are becoming more prosperous, and the people there more numerous and stable. Hence, in both the agricultural and the mining portions of the wide West, the work grows on our hands, and the demand for laborers that was urgent before, is more urgent now.

If our sense of obligation to Christ would allow us to pause in our work or to recede from our previous demand, the wise use of our forces would forbid it. A work well begun is half done. It is easier to organize and sustain the second score of churches in a new territory, than the first. An impression made on the people, of the energy and efficiency of our church in any new country, is a great advantage. It encourages our friends, it attracts those who otherwise were doubtful or inclined to stand aloof; and the consciousness of increasing numbers and strength in any given neighborhood, animates the people, like sending reinforcements and closing up the lines of broken battalions in the day of battle. To add 10 or 12 or 20 churches to those we now have in any Western State or Territory, is far easier and attended with much less expense to the Board, than the planting of that number at first. There is a momentum in any movement, which is a great help to it, and which costs the expenditure of no external force. But let it once become apparent that we cannot keep pace with the advancing tides of population, that we are falling behind in our work, that we have not the means or cannot find the men to do our share of it in the evangelization of the country, and immediately we fail to move with the advancing, but must work against a receding tide. Our work hitherto, and our success so far, is the best possible argument for us to persevere with unabated zeal. We cannot slack our hand without great danger. The enemy will observe it and rally the flying forces for a new assault. The best economy of forces, therefore, demands that we shall move forward and keep step with the mighty ongoings of our people, to take possession of every valley and mountain-side of our wide domain. We are abundantly able to go up and possess the land for Christ. Let us take home to our hearts the conviction that what we have done helps us in what we have to do; that what falls to our lot to do, we can do more easily now than ever again.

As therefore the need of men was never greater, and our urgent entreaties for their services so nearly vain, we cannot do less than report the alarming fact to the Assembly, and pray that the Lord of the harvest would send forth more laborers to reap the golden grain, and to participate in the satisfaction of that day when they shall "come again with rejoicing, bringing their sheaves with them."

The estimate we have made, while it does not cover the whole country, mainly concerns the demand to supply organizations already vacant, or where a call has been made for a supply; it by no means exhausts the real demand, the actual opportunity to establish churches, even in the older states, if we had the men and the means; and till the country is fairly supplied with churches and preachers of the gospel, one makes a demand for another; and if we had 200 men to supply the destitutions just enumerated, we should almost immediately need as many more. So that the point where the Home Missionary work ends, is still a vanishing and a receding point. The more we do, the more we are able to do, and the more we have to do.

As a natural consequence of such a state of things, a great number of new places have been reported to us, where we had the proper materials to form a church, but the Presbyteries and Missionaries have said it is of no use to form a church, unless it can have at least the partial care and services of a Missionary; if we cannot find men for the work, and other denominations can supply them, it is better that other denominations should have the field. And so in many instances, when even the members of our own churches in the East were ready to call for their letters and be organized into a Presbyterian church if we could but send them a missionary, we have been compelled to say that we could find no suitable man for them, and could only advise them to go into some other fold.

A SUCCESSFUL YET TRYING YEAR.

But we should do injustice to our impressions, if we did not testify to the fidelity of the missionaries and their devotion to their work during the year.

There are doubtless some who have been burdened with secular affairs. But we have steadily endeavored to give every Missionary such a salary that he need not be compelled to have his attention turned from the proper work of the ministry by any secular pursuits. We have therefore sought to displace school-teaching and farming, and every thing else which any of our missionaries may have thought themselves compelled to resort to for a livelihood, and secure their undivided attention to the proper work of the ministry. And we think in no previous year has there been more honest devotion to it than during the year just closed. And yet it is due to say, that in no previous year do we remember more serious difficulties to contend with. The oppressive and almost unparalleled heat of the summer, cut down our Missionaries and their wives at a rate never known before. But many of those who were able to continue their appointments and keep up regular labor, were so overcome and prostrated by the heat, that their labors were far less successful than usual. The same cause operated on the people. The Sabbath Congregations fell off; the Sabbath Schools were badly depleted; and the people, weary, listless and overcome by heat, fell far short of reaping the ordinary profit from the services of the Sanctuary.

No sooner had the intense heat of the season passed away, than that marvellous disease appeared among the horses, which paralyzed our commercial transactions in the great cities and inflicted a severe loss on the whole country. To many a Missionary who had several stations on his field, it became impossible to meet his appointments. Equally impossible was it for the scattered population of the rural districts, East or West, to go up to the house of God. And so the very season was lost when the missionary was accustomed to visit his people in their quiet homes, and when an abundant harvest gave them both leisure from labor, freedom from anxiety, and opportunity to give undivided attention to divine things.

Equally trying has been the severity of winter. Never before have we received so many reports in which the writers have said that they had just risen from a sick bed. But sickness has not been the most prevalent difficulty. The severe cold and the drifting snows in many instances broke up the religious services of the Week of Prayer, and other protracted or unusual services that gave promise of profit to the people. Their attendance on the ordinary services of the Sabbath, has been sadly interfered with; either because the Missionary could not meet his appointments or the people found it impossible to reach the Sanctuary. The Sabbath Schools and the weekly prayer meetings have suffered in like proportion, and no good interest has seemed to escape. To all this it is necessary to add what is not so extraordinary, but what every Missionary and every feeble church feels, the wide spread stringency in the money market, especially at the West. We have been accustomed to hear of crops cut off by frost or hail in limited sections of the country; but it has not been usual for us to hear so generally, a complaint of the want of money from the Missionaries and the churches. When the staple product of many of these states, on which the people most depend, becomes the cheapest article of fuel; it is quite clear that they may be warmed but they cannot well be clothed, nor can they carry on the work they have undertaken for Christ but at a great sacrifice.

THE PASTORAL RELATION.

The pastoral relation has never been lost sight of by the Board. In a new country where the population is shifting as well as heterogeneous, this relation should not be hastily formed. But the Board has always been heartily in sympathy with what has been said by the General Assembly as to the desirableness and importance of it; and if it has not pressed it constantly on the attention of the churches, leaving it where it seemed properly to belong, to the Missionaries, the churches and the Presbyteries; it has been one of our own most delicate tasks to secure something like permanent work on the missionary field. Many a cheering letter do we write, especially to the young men who are overwhelmed with difficulties, to encourage them to hope that a better day will dawn, or that if they leave the fields they are now in, they may encounter more serious embarrassments in others. We are continually led to counsel the churches to adhere to and stand by the Missionaries, by assuring them that the frequent changes they make in ministerial service, or the pastoral relation, are the source and cause of their continued weakness; showing them that scarcely any minister can fail to carry with him the sympathy of some portion of the people, who will be alienated if he be turned away; and if the removal of the Missionary does not weaken the congregation, the lack of ministerial service for a time, and the risk and uncertainty of obtaining another man, can scarcely fail to do so. Thus on the one hand and the other is it our endeavor to maintain pleasant and permanent relations between the Missionaries and the churches. Perhaps no persons in the church have such abundant opportunities as we have to note the bad influence of frequent changes, and the importance of the sower also waiting and watching till the time come to gather in the harvest.

We cannot say that one party is more to blame for the frequent changes than the other. There are churches that do not care to have their minister installed, and there are many ministers who leave their place of labor at their own option, without sufficient cause, and too soon for their own edification or that of the churches. But it is the care of the Board as far as possible, to adapt Missionaries to their people, and their fields of labor, so that their labors may be permanent and the very best results of permanence be realized.

CONFERENCE WITH THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

Home Missions and Colportage sustain such a relation to each other; that is, the preaching of the Gospel by the living messenger and by the printed page are so essentially one work, that the Board has opened negotiations with the Board of Publication to see if our Missionaries cannot be made their colporters, and thus unify the work and utilize the resources of the two Boards. No people are more accessible than those who make up the new settlements of the country, and none are more destitute of good books. To exclude and preclude the light and vicious literature so industriously disseminated, the early thorough distribution of such books as are prepared by our Board of Publication is of the first importance. But the Missionary needs to pass along every highway where new families have made their homes; he needs to enter their houses and make acquaintance with the inmates for the very purpose the Colporter makes his rounds among them. What can be a better introduction to the people than the offer of religious books? Why then could not the Missionary distribute these books, talk and pray with these people, and make both contribute directly to the growth of his congregation, and to the enlargement of his religious sympathies and his appropriate work? Who would be better entitled to the compensation paid by the Board of Publication than the Missionary, whose entire salary even then would be none too liberal for his most pressing wants? No conclusion has yet been reached by our negotiations with the Board of Publication, nor any plan yet devised by which these cognate branches of church work can be carried on by our Missionaries, but we hope a method may be devised by the Assembly, by which this most desirable result may be accomplished.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

One of the evils particularly noticeable at the West, is the great number of church organizations and church edifices in nearly every village. It is a great grief to many, that there should be so often found a Presbyterian, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, and perhaps other churches in a place, and each with a minister and a house of worship, when the whole number of church-going people could be easily accommodated in one church edifice, and served by a single minister of Christ. Regarding all the denominations as one church, one is ready to cry out against such a waste of funds and of ministerial force. The evil has been apparent to all denominations alike, and yet what was to be done? The representatives of one branch of the church had as good a right to have a church organization and a church edifice as others, and consequently the unseemly spectacle of from six to twelve church organizations and church edifices, has been common at the West, in towns containing less than a thousand people, and where all or nearly all the churches were receiving missionary aid from their respective Boards.

This state of things has led to a fraternal conference with the Secretaries of the American Home Missionary Society, to see if any method could be devised to prevent the establishment of both a Presbyterian and Congregational church in so many of the new and small towns of the West; that is, to inquire if the field could in any way be fairly divided so far as these two denominations are concerned. We are aware of the great and difficult problems to be solved in such a movement, and do not yet see that there is any possible solution. But we have thought that the opening of friendly negotiations between the denominations and their Home Missionary agencies, and the announcement and publication of some fraternal advice to the members of both these churches scattered throughout the new States and Territories; the declaration of certain great principles of christian charity, might lead to a better understanding of each other's purposes and wishes, and to greater harmony among all the people of God. We have no report to make of any basis of action, or of anything accomplished; but of something attempted or considered in the direction of peace, fraternity and good will. And whether anything more shall ever be done or not, we thought it proper to report to the Assembly, that we were painfully impressed with the evil of too many feeble churches, and that we hold ourselves in an attitude to mitigate the evil as soon as a feasible method shall be made apparent.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

Sabbath Schools flourish wherever we send our Missionaries. Frequently four or five schools, at mission stations where regular religious services are maintained by the missionary, are under his direction and care. And when we notice how often schools die that are not in connection with some church or under the care of some Missionary, we have reason to think that the best and most permanent results of Sabbath schools are in connection with our mission work. Hence, we find a ready response in the large Sabbath schools of our self-sustaining churches, in behalf of our Missionaries. It is well known that for several years, the average amount paid a Missionary is not far from $250; and a growing number of our Sabbath schools are assuming the support of a Missionary who thereby becomes their regular correspondent. Thus a large number of them have regular correspondence with some of our Missionaries at the West; and by the information thus conveyed, they become more intelligent givers, and by constant giving develop their benevolence to a large degree.

We commend the subject to the attention of the Assembly.

Sabbath schools are best promoted at the West in connection with the labors of our Missionaries. To aid Missionaries is to foster Sabbath schools. Therefore the Board of Home Missions is a legitimate object for the contributions of Sabbath schools in behalf of Sabbath schools; especially since, for so small a sum, they can put themselves in correspondence with the vast missionary and Sabbath school work at the West.

WOMAN'S WORK.

The same thoughtful care manifested in former years for their sisters the wives of Missionaries, has abounded with the christian women in our churches this year. Missionary boxes, which are never counted by us as any part of the salary, but as wholly a gratuity to the Missionaries, have been sent out in great abundance, and in this way relief has been furnished to many a needy family. But these boxes ought not to be the measure of the benefactions from the female members of our churches to their sisters in the home field. More money for an adequate salary is better than many boxes. And many of our female missionary societies so regard it, and cannot content themselves without adding donations in money for our treasury. The movement in behalf of Foreign Missions, awakens the conscience and sensibilities of the women in behalf of Home Missions.

But the same want of harmony which characterized the work among the women last year, has prevailed this year. Some are determined to restrict their contributions to Foreign Missions, while a growing number is in favor of a form of organization which embraces both Home and Foreign Missions. More men have made up their minds and more women are beginning to perceive, that an exclusive policy, that shuts out Home Missions, is a policy neither wise nor christian. The missionary work is one; but our churches cannot support and will not tolerate two female missionary organizations among them. They still clamor for and will have a more liberal policy. They claim that minorities have rights, and that if there be a Woman's Missionary Society in the congregation, it is equally the right of any of its members to give money through that organization to either Home or Foreign Missions. That sentiment is growing, and it is not the part of wisdom to resist it.

SYNODICAL SELF-SUPPORT IN THE CENTRAL WEST.

The movement to make the Synods in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois self-supporting, was so far successful last year, that all parties engaged therein were greatly gratified. At the last Synodical meetings, new adjustments were made and new plans laid, looking to the time when all Synods east of the Mississippi shall be self-supporting; shall be contributing rather than receiving Synods. Whatever may be the immediate result in these Synods, the movement has received such an impulse, and the feasibility of the undertaking has been made so apparent, that it may be safely left in the hands of the friends of the Board in the several states. It will not be forgotten, but will be kept before these bodies till they learn how to give more to our treasury than they draw from it.

LEGAL UNION OF THE BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS AND THE COMMITTEE OF HOME MISSIONS.

The most notable event of the year has been the actual and legal union of the Board of Domestic Missions and the Committee Home Missions, according to the instructions of the Assembly of 1870. The requisite Act* of Incorporation was obtained from the Legislature of New York last year, and "the opinion of competent counsel that the authority was perfect" having been obtained, as directed by the same Assembly, the transfer of the property of the Committee of Home Missions was made to the new organization. The legislation necessary to complete the union having been obtained from the Legislature of Pennsylvania during the last session, a similar transfer of the property of the Board of Domestic Missions was made in like manner to this Board, thus making the union complete.

Such an event makes it proper to pass in review the work of the two organizations now united, and show briefly what they have accomplished for our church and for the world.

* See Appendix.

And here we cannot do better than to make extracts from a report of a Commission of the General Assembly, presented to that body in 1860, on the "Relations of the Presbyterian Church to the work of Home Missions."

"The Home Missionary work of the Presbyterian Church carries us back over a period of more than a century. Traces of it are to be found on record as early as 1738. Immediately after the schism in 1741, both the Synods into which the Church was then divided entered upon its prosecution; and some of the earliest churches in Virginia and North-Carolina owe their origin to their exertions. The Synod of New-York took order on the subject at their first meeting in 1745. Robinson, and the two Tennents, and Samuel Davies, were among the missionaries sent out at that early period. In the years 1754, '55, and '56, we find among those who were sent to "the South, and particularly to North-Carolina," the names of Beatty, Bostwick, Lewis, Thane, Brainerd, Spencer, Clark, Ramsey, Duffield, Whitaker and Hait, names often recurring in our early annals, and still, many of them, quite familiar to Presbyterian ears. Upon the healing of the schism in 1758, the united Synod of New-York and Philadelphia pursued the work with increased vigor. * * * It would be exceedingly interesting, had we time, to trace the history of these early movements as it appears upon the Minutes of the Synod from year to year. Missionaries were sent into all parts of what was then the South and the West—into the western parts of Pennsylvania and Virginia, and as far South as South-Carolina and Georgia. * * * A gentleman in Connecticut, observing the benign influence of these movements, left the Synod a legacy, amounting to two hundred and eighty-seven pounds, for the aid of their missions in the Southern Colonies. They prosecuted the work during all the early part of the war of the revolution. And to this work, it is believed, is to be traced in a great measure the rapid early growth of the Presbyterian Church. As soon as the General Assembly was constituted, in 1789, that body took up the enterprise where the Synod had left it. Until 1802 they conducted it directly, as the Synod had done, appointing the missionaries and designating their fields. At that time a standing Committee of Missions was appointed, which, in 1816, was constituted into a Board of Missions, with increased numbers and enlarged powers; and this Board continued to act for the whole Church till the disruption in 1838, and has been in full operation as the Board of Domestic Missions of the Old School General Assembly to the present time."

For many years the Board had many difficulties to contend with; it had in 1826 only 51 missionaries. But in 1828 it had given to it enlarged powers; from that time it gained in influence and efficiency, so that in 1836 it had 242 missionaries, 378 in 1846, 566 in 1856, and 539 in 1866, or at the close of the war; and the Report of the Board in 1870 showed that the whole number in commission the previous year was 613.

During the separate existence of this branch of the church, from the disruption to the re-union, a period of thirty-three years, the total receipts of the Board were, omitting fractions, two millions five hundred and forty-five thousand dollars ($2,545,000).

The Board had efficiently pushed its work throughout its whole history, and in the language of the Report of 1870, it had planted "its missionaries in almost every State and Territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Massachusetts to Texas."

"Meanwhile, however, not a few Presbyterians as well as others preferred to act in this enterprise by voluntary associations; and societies for that purpose sprung up at different times, and in different parts of the country. In 1798, the Connecticut Missionary Society was founded, which labored efficiently from year to year in the new settlements of the West. * * * The Missionary Society of New-York was instituted in 1796. The Northern Missionary Society in the State of New-York in 1798. The Massachusetts Missionary Society was instituted in 1799, and incorporated in 1808. The Massachusetts Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge was formed in 1803. The Missionary Society of Hampshire County, in Massachusetts, was organized in 1800, that of New-Hampshire in 1801, and that of New Jersey in the same year. The Western Missionary Society, composed of the Synod of Pittsburgh was formed in 1802. The General Synod of the Reformed Dutch Church, from the year 1789, made annual collections in their churches, and constituted the Classis of Albany a standing Committee on Missions. Before the end of the first quarter of the present century, there were local Societies operating all over the country, some of them confining their benefactions to their own particular localities, and others sustaining and sending forth missionaries to labor in remote settlements.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The American Home Missionary Society was organized in 1826. But to arrive at the true origin of this Society, considered as an organized body, we must go back to the year 1822. The conviction had been growing in the minds of many, that some more general and comprehensive system than any hitherto in operation, was needed to meet the growing wants of our rapidly extending country. Accordingly a Convention of Delegates from ten Missionary Societies within the State of New-York met at the Brick Church, in New-York City, on the tenth of May, 1822, and organized the UNITED DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY. The delegates and those who assisted in the organization, were almost all, if not exclusively, of the Presbyterian and Reformed Dutch denominations, those of the latter being comparatively few. * * * The formation of this Society was at once hailed by the friends of the missionary enterprise, as constituting "a notable era in the history of American Home Missions." * * *

Very soon movements began to be made among our brethren in New-England towards a national society for domestic missions, with which they might coöperate. * * *

A committee was appointed and a Convention of New-England men called to meet in Boston, in the month of January, 1826. At that Convention, the whole subject was freely and fully discussed, the desirableness of such a society unanimously declared, certain principles agreed upon as fundamental, and at the same meeting, the alternative was distinctly presented, whether a new Society should be formed, and the United Society invited to become its auxiliary; or "that Society invited to become the national Society, modifying its constitution to suit the case." It was agreed, that the latter course should be adopted, and that, as a preliminary step, the Executive Committee should be requested to convene a more general meeting of the friends of missions. The more general meeting was convened accordingly. It met in the Brick Church session-room, on the tenth of May, 1826. The Executive Committee, having previously prepared the form of a constitution, which was no other than their own, with slight modifications, consisting chiefly in details and in the change of name, presented it to the Convention for their approval, as the basis of the contemplated Society. It was read and approved, article by article; and the Convention then resolved to recommend to the United Domestic Missionary Society, "to adopt the same, and become the American Home Missionary Society." Two days later, the Society held its annual meeting, and, after the presentation and adoption of its annual report, took up the recommendation of the Convention, and thereupon resolved, that the recommendation be adopted, and that the United Domestic Missionary Society do now become the American Home Missionary Society;

Two or three things here deserve to be noticed. First; that this Society, as constituted in 1826, was not a newly-created institution, but a modification of the preëxisting United Domestic Missionary Society. Second; that the United Domestic Missionary Society did not give way for, or affiliate itself to, the American Home Missionary Society, but became that Society by a simple change of its Constitution, according to its own constitutional provisions. Third; that the friends of Home Missions in New-England followed their own preference, after long deliberation, in requesting room to be made for them in the previously existing and already flourishing Society, rather than attempting the organization of a new one. Fourth; that this Society, which had been in existence four years, and had attained to an annual income of nearly $12,000, and had on its list 148 churches and 127 missionaries; which had already excited the admiration of the country for its zeal and success; and had called forth, in one instance, a donation of fifty guineas from the Secretary of a foreign Home Missionary Society; passed its whole work, with all its prestige and its list of contributors and auxiliaries, to the account of the new organization. Fifth; nor should it be overlooked, that the gentlemen who formed this Society, and sustained it alone thus far, were almost exclusively Presbyterians, with a few of their Reformed Dutch brethren.

The disruption was then at hand, and after that period the Home Missionary operations of what is called the New School branch of the church may be said to have been identified with that society.

Having the support of such a body of Presbyterians, and at length of all the Congregationalists in the country, it had a rapid growth, and accomplished much in sending the Gospel into the destitute places of the country.

In 1826 it had 169 missionaries. Ten years later, in 1836, it had 786; in 1846, it had 972; in 1856, 974, and in 1860-'61, it had 1,062 missionaries.

But at this time many of the Presbyterians thought that the Society, both at the East and the West, was so conducted as to discriminate against the Presbyterian Church, and that its power was wielded indirectly in the interest of the Congregationalists. Private complaints and public remonstrances, and a Commission of the General Assembly, "to ascertain by a thorough investigation the facts in the case, and procure such other information as might be in their power, relating to the history of our connection with the work of Home Missions, and our present relations to it," all failed to restore harmony.

And so in the General Assembly of 1861, "the Committee of Home Missions" was organized. And then, leaving the prestige, the power of history, name, compact organization and assured position, which they had helped to create, to their brethren with whom they had walked so long, and in the face of a most stupendous war, that branch of the church resolved to resume the conduct of Home Missionary operations for itself and within its own bounds.

The churches sprang to the aid of the new organization with wonderful unanimity. And the rapidity with which we gained our place at the West was equally wonderful. Young men cheerfully offered themselves for frontier work, and we infused new life and energy into Presbyteries and Synods that had barely held their own for ten years before; and at the end of nine years, when the two branches of the church became one, the Committee of Home Missions had the names of 535 missionaries on its roll.

These dry statistics merely indicate the heroic and self-denying labors of a great company of missionaries who have suffered, succeeded, and died in planting the standard of the Cross in our western country. Fifty years ago, at the meeting of the General Assembly, there was no Commissioner from all that portion of our country lying north of Kentucky and west of Ohio, and all the churches therein contained scarcely numbered a score. Now we have not only many churches and Presbyteries, but seven large and flourishing Synods west of the Mississippi. Nearly all the churches in these bounds have been founded or fostered by Home Missionaries, and it is probably safe to say that nearly all of our churches within these limits have been the result of Home Missions. By Home Missions we have turned back the waves of ungodliness and infidelity, and we have done much to establish order along the frontiers of our country; we have originated and planted institutions of learning; we have turned the wilderness into a fruitful field, and doubtless gathered a great multitude of souls into the kingdom of Christ.

Now, by the acts of the re-united church, and by legislative enactments, these two organizations have become one. But nothing that is valuable has perished in the change. The old names henceforth belong to history; but all the potent forces and good influences belonging to both, it is hoped, have been gathered up and combined for better, higher service in time to come.

But the union has taken place none too soon. The war closed, the capital and enterprise of the country have been largely devoted to railway extension. The wide and fertile prairies in all the West; the wonderful mining regions of the Rocky Mountains, always most fascinating to a hardy population, now brought near, and increasing in their developments with great rapidity; and the varied attractions from the sunny shores of the Pacific are luring our own people, and people from all parts of the world, from Christian and heathen lands, to the occupancy of the new and hitherto unexplored portions of our wide country. Every new settlement furnishes new opportunities to the Board of Home Missions, and lays us under new obligations, and we are well nigh overwhelmed with the magnitude and pressing nature of the demands made on us. Not a week passes, nor scarcely a day, that does not bring us the news of new openings, and an urgent appeal for preachers of the Gospel. Is there any way for the General Assembly to help us to men? Is it impossible for the church to furnish the Board with ministers of the Gospel for these promising fields, or means for their support? We do not believe it. With a more complete consecration of ourselves to the Master's service, there would doubtless be found the ability to do the work, and with its accomplishment would come the exceeding satisfaction of successfully serving God, and the first-fruits of that reward which is to be an "hundred-fold in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting."

. ELECTION OF MEMBERS.

The term of service of Revs. Jas. O. Murray, D. D., John Hall, D. D., Wm. M. Paxton, D. D., and of Geo. W. Lane and Geo. R. Loekwood, expires with this Assembly.

Of these Missionaries, 312 are settled pastors.

So far as it has been in the power of the Board we have endeavored to supplement the salaries of the Missionaries to such an amount that they should not be compelled to leave their fields of labor on account of inadequate support. They have all been promptly paid through the year, and the whole salary of 318 has been $1000 or more. One hundred and sixty-six have parsonages, and all such as had $800 and a parsonage, must have received for their services from $950 to $1,000 each. That is, about 450 or 500 of our Missionaries receive what is equivalent to $1,000, which probably makes them the best paid band of Missionaries in the country.

220 Missionaries have failed to furnish statistical Reports. But if their statistics correspond to those forwarded, we may safely add one-fifth to the figures already given.

136 churches have been formed during the past year, in States and Territories, as follows :

APPENDIX.

THE Standing Committee on Home Missions to whom was referred the Third Annual Report of the Board of Home Missions, after due consideration of the same, beg leave to present the following Report :

During the past year the legal and actual union of the Board of Domestic Missions, and the Committee on Home Missions, has been completed, according to the instructions of the Assembly of 1870. By the acts of the reunited church, and by legislative enactments in the States of New-York and Pennsylvania, which, in the opinion of competent counsel, are amply sufficient, these two organizations have become one. Nothing that was vital or valuable in either has perished. The history, the practical experience and the living forces of both will hereafter be combined under the name of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

The cause represented by this Board has always been deservedly dear to the heart of the Church. Its character and claims are happily expressed in its title. As it is a work of MISSIONS, doing the great commandment "go preach my gospel," its first and chief element is supreme loyalty to our Lord, Jesus Christ. At the same time it embodies, as no other cause can, sentiments and hopes which, though subordinate to the love which obeys Christ's commandments, are nevertheless unspeakably precious. It appeals to our love for our own Church, our own country, our own home ; to all that is blessed in the memory of our past history, as a people, and to all our anxieties for the prosperity of God's Kingdom among the teeming millions of our future population. The Board of Home Missions, as now constituted, is a native growth which has absorbed much of the wisdom and strength of the Church for half a century. It is at once stable and elastic ; holding steadily to its one grand object, and yet adapting itself constantly to the changing circumstances of the country, and of the people to whom it extends the blessings of the gospel. It is a tree whose roots run down into the purest fountains of the past, whose fruits have always been brought forth in their season, and the shadow of whose branches reaches far into the future. The fact that nine-tenths of all the Presbyterian Churches west of the Allegheny Mountains, including the oldest organizations in such cities as Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis, were nourished in their infancy by Home Missionary aid, speaks volumes to show the past success and the future capabilities of this great cause.

Your Committee are deeply impressed with the conviction that any retrogression in the work of Home Missions, or even any failure to advance with a vigor steadily proportioned to the ever increasing demands of the field, would be an unspeakable calamity to all the interests of the Presbyterian Church. To stand still in this cause is virtually to fall back. For the tides of population are ever sweeping on beyond our most advanced position, and if we do not enter the wide and effectual door, the many adversaries will not cease their activity because of our indifference ; nor will the neglect of our opportunities fail to bring a blight and a mildew on the Church where it is already established.

Your Committee notice, therefore, with pain that there has been a diminution in the operations of the Board during the past year in respect of both men and money. The amount of receipts from all sources during the year is $304,717.97, which is $26,253 less than it was last year. The whole number of ministers holding commissions from the Board is 992. A diminution of —. This decrease is doubtless due in some degree to the transfer of men and means to the Committee of Sustentation. But the loss cannot be wholly attributed to this cause. In regard to ministers there seems to have been a lamentable failure in the ordinary sources of supply. Our attention is solicited by the Board to what is well characterized as the "alarming fact" that unusual efforts to obtain new men for new and promising fields have been almost entirely in vain. The young men about to graduate from our seminaries listened respectfully, but responded feebly to the appeals which were made to them by the Secretaries.

The assertion so often made that we have too many ministers, certainly derives no support from the present condition of our Home Missionary work. Nor is there any justification to be derived from this source for the repeated complaint that our church does not provide places and means of living for ministers who are able and willing to preach the Gospel. Our great want this day is more men for the work of the ministry. The supply does not keep pace with the demand. There may be an accumulation of unemployed ministers in our great cities, among whom many are disabled by age or other infirmity; some who are reckoned without charge have nevertheless very important charges, and are doing good work for the cause of Christ, and some perhaps who ought to be preaching, are devoting themselves to secular pursuits. But for the last mentioned class, which we are persuaded is very small, there is no excuse unless it may be found in a want of real and earnest desire to preach the Gospel "wherever God in his providence may call them." If ministers could be found who have a mind for the work, a hundred such could be placed at once by our Board in promising positions on the Pacific coast and in the territories so rapidly developing on both slopes of the Rocky Mountains, and a hundred more in the vast territory lying between the mountains and the Mississippi river.

In addition to the decrease in men and means, the Board speak of some peculiar providential hindrances to their work during the past year.

The want of money among the people in some sections, where corn, the staple product, was so abundant and cheap that it was used for fuel instead of being sold; the excessive heat of the summer, followed by the no less excessive cold of the winter, both severely trying the health of ministers and their families in common with other people, and making it difficult to keep up the regular services of the church and the Sabbath; these and some other obstacles are reported, as diminishing in an unusual degree the annual fruits of the cause.

But notwithstanding all discouragements and trials, God, who crowns the year with his goodness, has caused the harvest to follow the seed-sowing of his Kingdom, and many have returned, bringing their sheaves with them. The Board bear honorable testimony to the fidelity and devotion of the ministers under their care, and report that all pecuniary engagements with them have been fully and promptly met. The visible and tangible results of their labors for the past year, are summed up in the following statistics:

3,421 hopeful conversions.
 3,944 added to churches on profession.
 3,333 added on certificate.
 98 church edifices built.
 81 church edifices repaired or enlarged.
 $174,232 church debts cancelled by churches.
 18 churches become self sustaining.
 136 new churches organized.

These statistics, encouraging as they are in themselves, suggest more than they express. The result of a faithful ministry never can be embodied in figures. Its more subtle and far-reaching influences come not with observation. They sink down into the heart of childhood, a seed that will spring up and bear fruit when the head that scattered it has lost its cunning.

They intermingle with the foundations of social order. They twine themselves about every good constitution. They quicken as with the breath of spring, everything that makes the wilderness to rejoice, and the desert to bud and blossom as the rose. Their results never can be exhibited, nor their value estimated until the great day of revelation shall declare it. We may well give thanks to God, and congratulate ourselves, and send greetings of approval and encouragement to the faithful men who are laboring in the waste places of the land; not only for what is thus reported, but for much more that only the eye of the Master can see, and the heart of the Master comprehend with a perfect sympathy.

It should be understood by all our ministers and church members, and especially by young men who are soon to enter upon the work of the ministry, that our Board of Home Missions is not a beneficiary institution in any degrading sense of that term. It is simply one of the agencies by which the church supports her ministers according to the divine command, that they who preach the gospel shall live by the the gospel. The ecclesiastical position of a minister whose salary is received partly through this Board, is in no respect different from the position of any other minister in the church. He is responsible like others to his own brethren in the Presbytery to which he belongs. He is not under the supervision of the Board, except so far as they carry out the instructions of the General Assembly, in the distribution of the funds of the church, and in the prosecution of the work committed to them. The money he receives through this agency is not a gift from the Board to him, but a contribution from the whole church, to the particular church which he serves, enabling them to pay the salary which is his just and lawful due. In making appropriations, the Board is to be guided mainly by the applications of the Presbyteries; nor are they authorized to reduce the amount applied for, unless their knowledge of the state of their funds, and their wider view of the wants of the whole field, render such reduction necessary.

Your Committee believe the Board have always discharged their high trust in strict accordance with these principles, and while we recognize the need for a large advance in the same direction, we rejoice at the result which has already been reached in the support of ministers under its care. One-half of them receive, at the present time, a salary which, including in some instances the estimated value of parsonages, amounts to not less than $1,000 per annum. We should rejoice if this were true of them all. We trust the time will come when every minister in our church, whether connected with this Board or not, will have such a support as will make him free from worldly cares and avocations, and enable him to give himself without distraction to his work. But let us not fail to recognize and give thanks to God for the advance which has already been made in this direction. Neither let it be hastily inferred that those whose incomes fall below the sum above mentioned are necessarily in want. The circumstances of men's families, and the cost of living vary so much, that it is not possible to fix any sum which will be a fair support for all. In our widely extended country it will often be found that the cost of living in one locality is less by one-half than it is in another. While your Committee feel that the whole church, as well as particular congregations, need to be constantly reminded of their duty in regard to the support of our ministry, we deprecate such exaggerated statements, founded upon exceptional cases, as tend to bring discredit upon the church and to discourage young men from entering the ministry. We believe that great evil has been wrought in this way.

Your Committee notice with satisfaction the efforts of the Board to encourage the formation of the pastoral relation, and to unite feeble churches in the same neighborhood under one pastoral charge.

We also approve the proposal of the Board to unite the work of Colportage and Home Missions whenever it is practicable, and hope that the negotiation which has been opened with the Board of Publication looking to this end, will be prosecuted to a successful conclusion.

The revived interest of our Christian women in the work of missions is a hopeful sign, deserving of grateful recognition by this Assembly. Their contributions through their various organizations to the funds of the Home, as well as of the Foreign Board are, we trust, the precious first fruits of a plentiful harvest. We recognize also their benevolent work in supplying many of our ministers with boxes of clothing and other useful articles, and in order to correct a prevalent error on the subject, we deem it proper to say that the value of such boxes is never in any case deducted from the amount of the minister's salary.

In view of the foregoing facts and principles, your Committee submit the following resolutions for adoption :

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly expresses its unwavering confidence in the Board of Home Missions as an agency which has been proved by long experience to be admirably adapted both to the support of feeble churches in our older neighborhoods and to the extension of the gospel into the regions beyond.

2. That we acknowledge and give thanks for the divine blessing which has made the past year so fruitful in this good work.

3. That we recognize the fidelity of the Board and its Secretaries to the high trust committed to them.

4. That we lament before God our lack of men to occupy our vacant and destitute fields, and solemnly call upon ministers not employed to go work in Christ's vineyard ; upon the students in our theological seminaries to consider the claims of the Home Mission field ; upon parents to consecrate their sons to the work of the ministry ; and upon all our people to pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers into his harvest.

5. That we express our profound sympathy with the ministers and with all the Christian men and women who are laboring to uphold the cause of Christ and to enlarge the borders of our church in our frontier settlements. The Assembly sends its greetings to all such good and faithful servants.

6. That we enjoin upon all our Presbyteries to insist upon the formation of the pastoral relation in the churches under their care, whenever it is practicable and likely to be permanent.

7. That the Board of Home Missions is directed as far as possible to make the salaries of ministers sufficient for a respectable living in the neighborhood where they reside, in order to remove all necessity and excuse for ministers devoting themselves to such secular pursuits as are inconsistent with their office.

8. That every church receiving aid from the Board be required to adopt some systematic plan of giving, so as to develop the benevolence of the people and prepare the way for self-support.

9. That all our churches and ministers be solemnly urged, in the name of Christ and for the glory of His great Name, to secure larger contributions to the funds of the Home Mission Board.

10. That we recognize with gratitude the efforts of our Christian women in behalf of missions ; and regarding the home and foreign field as but two departments of the same great cause, we recommend them to continue their sympathy and aid to both.

11. That the Board of Home Missions is directed, with a prudent regard for the state of their funds, to devise liberal things to send the gospel wherever in our widely extended country there may be a destitute field and an open door.

The term of service of Rev. Drs. Murray, Hall and Paxton, and of Elders Geo. W. Lane and Geo. R. Lockwood, having expired, your Committee recommend their re-election.

would be held by the said Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America ; and it is hereby further provided and declared, that all grants, conveyances, devises and bequests which shall be made or purport to be made to the said Corporation last named shall be deemed and taken to be made to the said the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America with the same effect as if made directly thereto.
